

EXHIBIT A

Expert Report

New Jersey Foreclosure Complaints

Legal and Professional Standards

By

Christy Zoltun Donati, Esq.
903 Cummings Avenue
Blackwood, NJ 08012
P: (856) 237-7479
E: Christy@Zoltun.com

I. Purpose and Scope

I am Christy Zoltun Donati, Esquire. I have been retained by Frank J. Reed, III, Creditor Pro Se, of 817 Matlack Drive Moorestown, NJ 08057, in relation to his prosecution of his and his wife's proof of claim against GMACM and Residential Funding Corporation In re: Residential Capital, LLC, et al., Case No. 12-12020 (MG), Chapter 11, Jointly Administered, United States Bankruptcy Court Southern District of New York.

I have been retained to discuss the legal and professional standards that are recognized and adhered to in the preparation, filing and prosecuting of foreclosure actions in the State of New Jersey; and to discuss why these standards exist and the importance of strict compliance with these standards.

The particular standards that I will address in this report will be confined to those standards of legal and professional care that are the subject of Mr. & Mrs. Reed's proofs of claims.

II. Relevant Qualifying Experience

Foreclosure Attorney
Phelan Hallinan & Schmieg LLP
400 Fellowship Rd, Mt Laurel, NJ 08054

1/2010 – 3/2014

Firm Resume

PhelanHallinan & Schmieg, LLP specializes in providing loss mitigation, foreclosure, bankruptcy, REO, eviction and related services in New Jersey and Pennsylvania to the residential mortgage servicing industry. Since its founding over 25 years ago, the firm has developed into the region's premier default services operation, representing almost every major lender and loan servicer.

(As published on: <http://www.fedphe.com> as recent as 8/8/14).

As a Foreclosure attorney for “the region's premier default services operation, representing almost every major lender and loan servicer,” I managed thousands of foreclosure proceedings. This included the verification and / or performance of all conditions precedent required by contract or law to achieve the actual accrual of the right to file a foreclosure action. I would also draft the foreclosure complaints in compliance with all professional and legal standards; or review complaints for such compliance BEFORE their filing.

Additionally, I would file the foreclosure complaints, their associated lis pendens and subsequent pleadings. Again, with the responsibility to do so in compliance with all relevant professional and legal standards.

To accomplish the tasks I outline above, I not only was a practicing licensed attorney in the state of New Jersey, but I attended a great deal of in house specialized legal training as well as numerous Continuing Legal Education seminars all on the subject of foreclosure.

Additional Relevant Professional Experience

Real Estate Paralegal

Reed – Smith

Philadelphia, PA

5/86 – 3/97 & 1/03 – 8/07

Worked on the drafting of real estate related contracts and agreements and provided litigation support services for real estate related contracts and agreements.

Real Estate Paralegal

Obermayer, Rebman, Maxwell & Hipple

Philadelphia, PA

9/97- 9/98

Worked on the drafting of real estate related contracts and agreements and provided litigation support services for real estate related contracts and agreements.

Real Estate Paralegal

Pep Boys – in house legal department

Philadelphia, PA

3/97- 8/97

Worked on the drafting of real estate related contracts and agreements and provided litigation support services for real estate related contracts and agreements.

III. Analysis of the Reed File

Reasons for Legal and Professional Standards of Care and The Foreseeability of Harm for Failing to Adhere to Those Standards

a) Accrual of the Right to Foreclose

Notice

As noted in a relevant legal treatise, Weinstein, 30A New Jersey Practice: Law of Mortgages § 30.3A (2d ed. 2010), titled “Accrual of Right to Foreclose”:

Generally speaking, unless prohibited by law, forbearance in the mortgage, or some valid defense exists, the right to foreclose accrues on default (breach of any covenant or condition in the mortgage or secured obligation), expiration of any grace periods, if any, and performance or expiration of any conditions precedent, such as the giving of any required notice or demand in accordance with the mortgage documents or applicable law.

(emphasis added)

The reason this notice is significant is expressed in a variety of legal authorities one of which is the legal treatise Weinstein 30 New Jersey Practice: Law of Mortgages § 24.16 (2d ed. 2008).

“The institution of foreclosure is traumatic to the debtor mortgagor and creates a permanent court record which can be injurious to the debtor’s credit. The notice of intention is meant to give the debtor a chance to prevent acceleration and institution of Foreclosure.”

(emphasis added)

The Mortgage Documents

The Reed’s Mortgage contract expressly provides that notice be given prior to the institution of litigation and that this notice conform with the requirements of the New Jersey Fair Foreclosure Act. (see the Reed’s Mortgage contract).

The Fair Foreclosure Act

Recently, and generally, the New Jersey Supreme Court affirmed the absolute requirement that a notice of intent to foreclose must be sent prior to instituting a foreclosure action in New Jersey in US Bank Nat. Ass'n v. Guillaume, 209 N.J. 449, 470, 38 A.3d 570, 581-82 (N.J. 2012), in which it stated:

“The notice of intention is a central component of the FFA, serving the important legislative objective of providing timely and clear notice to homeowners that immediate action is necessary to forestall foreclosure.”

(emphasis added).

The relevant rule of Guillaume is derived from a long list of cases standing for the same principle – i.e. the intent and purpose of the FFA is to provide a delinquent homeowner the opportunity to take curative action PRIOR to the drastic mechanism of foreclosure BECAUSE of the serious and disruptive, or even potentially disastrous effect it can have on the homeowner. See US Bank Nat. Ass'n v. Guillaume, 209 N.J. 449, 38 A.3d 570 (N.J. 2012); Wells Fargo Home Mortg., Inc. v. Stull, 378 N.J.Super. 449, 876 A.2d 298 (N.J.Super.App.Div. 2005); EMC Mortg. Corp. v. Chaudhri, 400 N.J.Super. 126, 136-37, 946 A.2d 578, 585 (N.J.Super. App.Div. 2008)(the FFA “was designed to make clear the rights and remedies of both borrowers and lenders prior to and throughout the foreclosure process”).

“[T]he Fair Foreclosure Act was designed to make clear the rights and remedies of both borrowers and lenders prior to and throughout the foreclosure process.” Wells Fargo Home Mortg., Inc. v. Stull, 378 N.J.Super. 449, 456, 876 A.2d 298, 302-303 (N.J.Super.App.Div. 2005)(emphasis added).

Now, specifically as the FFA pertains to the Reed’s proofs of claim, there are two relevant facts and they are as follows:

The New Jersey Chancery Court found

- 1) that GMACM did not comply with the notice requirements of the FFA and
- 2) that GMACM neglected to plead its compliance, making its pleading negligently defective as well.

This was expressed in the Court’s dismissal of the 2008 foreclosure action. (see the New Jersey Chancery Court’s Written Opinion substantiating the dismissal of the GMACM foreclosure complaint).

b) Standing

The Reed Note

GMACM has indicated in its pleadings and filings in the 2008 foreclosure action in the New Jersey Chancery Court that they were the “Holder” of the note and mortgage. The term “Holder” is a specific legal term which expressly denotes that that person or entity has the rights to the payments under the note AS WELL AS the right to enforce the note.

In other words all the rights remain vested in that one person or entity. Again, this is what GMACM ultimately indicates to the New Jersey Chancery Court in its 2008 Motion for Summary Judgment. In this motion and supporting certification, GMACM explicitly states that it is the Holder of the note and the glaring implication is that this is the basis of its standing to enforce the Note and Mortgage. However, this representation was and is apparently not true.

To enforce the note as a holder pursuant to N.J.S.A. 12A:3-301, plaintiff would have to establish that it received the note, through negotiation, prior to and continued to maintain this at the time of the filing of any enforcement action (i.e. the filing of a foreclosure complaint). That would require that the plaintiff have physical possession of note and that the note be endorsed prior to or at the time of delivery, either in favor of plaintiff or in blank.

In reviewing the Reed’s documents in pursuit of their proofs of claim in the Rescap Bankruptcy case, I have seen the declaration of Lauren Delehey The Debtor’s Chief litigation Officer and the exhibits she attached. Ms. Delehey asserted that at no time was GMACM the “owner” of the note and she submitted the endorsed note as proof.

At this point, I will not opine as to the “ownership” of the note, as that is not the relevant question of fact. The relevant inquiry is actually who was the “Holder” of the note at the time that GMACM asserted to the New Jersey Chancery Court that it was in fact the “Holder” of the note to gain and maintain its standing to bring the foreclosure action.

It is indisputably clear that GMACM was not the holder at the time it brought the foreclosure suit against the Reeds. By their own evidence submitted, the note shows no endorsement to GMACM and there is no endorsement in the blank so that GMACM could be a Holder via possession.

At this juncture it is imperative to reinforce here that “Holder” is a specific legal term denoting legal status that can be ONLY obtained in two distinct ways and in light of Ms. Delehy’s supplied evidence, there is no way that GMACM was the ‘Holder’ of the Reed note at the time it filed its foreclosure action. As such, GMACM had no standing to file the foreclosure action against the Reeds.

It should also be noted that GMACM never asserted that it had standing that would flow from being a “non-holder in possession”. This fact is not inconsequential for GMACM as this status is mutually exclusive of the status of being a “Holder”.

Reed Mortgage Contract

In addition to the requirements above, regarding the debt obligation, i.e. the note, a plaintiff in a foreclosure action must also be the counterparty, (the mortgagee), to the mortgagor in the mortgage contract - at the time of the filing of a foreclosure complaint in the Chancery Courts in New Jersey - to have standing to bring the foreclosure action. This is because the mortgagee derives its authority to proceed in foreclosure in the Chancery Court from the rights it is granted by the mortgage contract. Therefore, without being the mortgagee at the time of the filing of the plaintiff has no right to file or prosecute the foreclosure.

In our modern world of finance, “becoming a mortgagee” typically occurs via assignment from the original mortgagee as notes and their related securities are bought and sold in various transactions. In the Reed’s case this was the fact as well. However, the assignment of the mortgage from a predecessor in interest, (in this case MERS), to GMACM did not occur until after the foreclosure action was filed. Therefore, GMAC not only lacked standing to bring a foreclosure action in the Chancery Courts of New Jersey.

c) The Lis Pendens

The lis pendens in New Jersey goes strictly with action, meaning, the lawsuit itself. To that specific point, the lis pendens incorporates the caption and docket number from the subject litigation. As such, if a case is disposed of, in any manner, the lis pendens must be removed. This is not only required by statute, but common law as it is well understood that the lis pendens interferes with the property rights of the owner. Generally, it interferes with his right to sell or finance it. See below:

LIS PENDENS: case law re practical effect

Spyco, Inc. v. Demenus, 226 N.J.Super. 482, 486 (Ch. Div. 1988)(involving an action brought by a mortgagee to discharge lis pendens on ground that the particular mortgagee was not named as a defendant in the related foreclosure action – chancery court discharge lis pendens, noting):

“An improperly filed Notice of Lis Pendens can create “a hardship on the owners of real estate where the alleged interest in the property is uncertain or problematical ... [T]he very filing of a notice of lis pendens destroys the ability of the property holder to convey marketable title if the litigant has any possibility of success.” Fravega v. Security S & L Ass’n, 192 N.J. Super. 213, 218, 469 A.2d 531 (Ch. Div. 1983). Because the very filing of a Notice of Lis Pendens constitutes a “taking of property” in the constitutional sense, Chrysler Corp. v. Fedders Corp., 519 F. Supp. 1252 (D.N.J. 1981), rev’d on other grounds, 670 F.2d 1316 (3d Cir. 1982), due process concepts are implicated. Trus Joist Corp. v. Treetop Associates Inc., 97 N.J. 22, 32, 477 A.2d 817 (1984). That need evoked the legislative response which in 1982 led to the adoption of N.J.S.A. 2A:15-7(b). Therefore, since a copy of the Notice must be served on the defendant in the pending action it is illogical and indeed may be unconstitutional to permit the filing of the Notice against the property interest of a person who is not a named defendant in that action.

By failing to follow the statutory mandate the plaintiffs in the federal action have created the present situation. Not being a named party in that suit and not having received notice of the filing of the lis pendens and having discovered its potentially disastrous effect of its financing plans, Spyco had no alternative other than this separate action to discharge that lis pendens. This court has full jurisdiction to accord that relief.”

Fravega v. Security Sav. and Loan Ass’n*, 192 N.J. Super. 213, 218 (Ch. Div. 1983)(noting, on a motion to discharge a lis pendens):

“... the very filing of a notice of lis pendens “destroys the ability of a property holder to convey marketable title if the litigant has any possibility of success.” Emphasis supplied. Chrysler Corp. v. Fedders Corp., supra at 1260. Clearly then, by couching the burden in terms of “probability” rather than possibility the Legislature intended to elevate the standard by which plaintiffs’ proofs would be measured.”

Chrysler Corp. v. Fedders Corp.*, 519 F. Supp. 1252, 1262 (D.N.J. 1981)(this decision was made prior to the 1982 amendment of NJ’s lis pendens statute – the 1982 amendment expressly allowed for a challenge, by motion, to a lis pendens filing, within which the filer of the lis pendens had to establish a probability of success in the action – as in the two case cited above. The court held that the statute was unconstitutional. The District Court’s decision was overturned by the 3rd Circuit on other grounds. Nonetheless, the dicta as to the effect of a lis pendens filing is compelling and relevant):

“The effect of the filing of a lis pendens on a defendant’s property and the consequent limitation on his or her right to alienate that property varies considerably depending upon the defendant’s plans with respect to the realty. On the one hand, because the lis pendens does not affect the defendant’s right to use and enjoy the land, a defendant who has no intention of alienating or mortgaging his or her land will suffer virtually no harm. If every defendant fell into this class, there would be no cause for concern about the New Jersey statute.

There is, however, another class of defendants, of which Fedders claims to be a member. These defendants have the present intention of selling their realty. It is easy to see that this class is seriously affected by the filing of a lis pendens. It is an unfortunate fact of life that modern litigation, like that described in the earlier times of Charles Dickens' Bleak House, has a way of dragging on for a long time. The complaint in this case is extremely long and complicated, and it is unlikely that this case will lend itself to rapid disposition. ...so it is unlikely that any purchaser can be found who would be willing to buy the property, even at a discounted price. Unless the lis pendens is dissolved, defendants who wish to alienate their property are seriously harmed. Even if the property is sold at a discount, the defendant has lost many dollars in comparison to the property's value before the lis pendens is filed."

Chrysler Corp. v. Fedders Corp., 670 F.2d 1316, 1328 (3d Cir. 1982)(here, the 3rd Circuit recognizes the effects noted by the District Court):

As the district court correctly noted, the effect on the defendant property owner of filing a notice of lis pendens "varies considerably depending upon the defendant's plans with respect to the realty." 519 F.Supp. at 1262. As we noted in Part A above, the property owner does not suffer at all in either its possession or use of the property. Thus, the filing of the notice of lis pendens does not affect those defendants who have no intention of alienating or mortgaging the property. Only those defendants who desire to sell their property are affected because the practical effect of the filing of the notice of lis pendens may be to prevent alienability or at least to hinder it.

Additionally, it is of no small consequence that the knowledge that a lis pendens can affect the value of property is so widely known that it even appears on Wikipedia (see excerpt immediately below) and by my opinion should be considered to be in the body of knowledge encompassed in the Common Knowledge Doctrine, and as such it makes the acts of the GMACM and RFC even more egregious.

Effect [edit]

*Lis pendens is taken as constructive notice of the pending lawsuit and it serves to place a cloud on the title of the property in question until the suit is resolved and the notice released or the lis pendens is expunged. Careful buyers will be unwilling to purchase land subject to a "lis pendens" or will only purchase the land at a discount, prudent lenders will not lend money on the security of the land and title insurance companies will not insure the title to such land: title is taken subject to the outcome of the lawsuit. Because so much real property is purchased with borrowed money, this usually keeps the owner from selling the property. It also may keep the owner from borrowing money secured by the property (such as to pay the costs of defending the suit).

(http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Lis_pendens)

Generalities being said, I must now specifically turn to these issues as they relate to the Reeds. I have reviewed correspondence with the Reeds lenders which proclaim that Mr. Reed lost financing options from their respective institutions.

First, I would like to address a sequence of letters by and between Mr. Reed and TD Bank. TD Bank is a large multi-billion dollar bank spanning much of the Eastern Coast of the United States. It enjoys a solid reputation in the community at large and is subject to Federal Regulation. It is with an eye to that regulation that I must view the letters to and from Mr. Reed and TD Bank as factually true.

TD Bank is subject to Equal Credit Opportunity Act and as such, must disclose to Mr. Reed any and all material reasons why any offer of credit is denied. This is clearly mandated in Regulation B § 202.9(a)(2).

The ONLY reason TD Bank cites as being the reason for its declination of Mr. Reed's "cash our Refi" is the foreclosure action that was uncovered from the public record. This letter was provided as part of TD Bank's regular business operations as mandated by Federal Law and as such is admissible for consideration under the Federal Rules of Evidence 803(6). As such, I believe that the actions of both GMACM and RFC hindered and or interfered with Mr. Reed's right to prepay his note and his obligation to make payments up to and including paying off his note.

Additionally, I reviewed correspondence from an individual named Thomas Tartamosa who purportedly worked for a lender from which Mr. Reed had apparently sought credit and financing as well. The contents of this letter are similar with the TD letter, and comports with both the general rule and specific circumstances. As such I believe it corroborates Mr. Reeds assertions that the wrongful foreclosure filing interfered with and or hindered his financing abilities.

I also reviewed the report and foundational documents of Louise Carter and I concur with her analysis of the causation of Mr. Reed's lost value on 817 Matlack Drive Moorestown, NJ property as it also comports with the general rule and specific circumstances.

IV. Regulators Opinions - Negligence / Wrongful Acts

The Reeds have clearly identified the various elements in fact and law which comprise the tort of negligence in their proofs and arguments presented to the Court and I have examined these facts in light of the governing professional and legal standards of care. However, there is another authority that I can turn to for alternative guidance as to the proper characterization of GMACM and RFC's behavior as it regards the Reeds. The opinion of the GMACM and RFC's primary regulator, the Federal Reserve Board (FRB) is a legally valid basis for this determination, (see Federal Rules of Evidence 803(8)(c)).

There exists written and oral testimony before the United States Senate, testimony that is a matter of the public record and was given by and on behalf of the Debtor's regulator, the Federal Reserve Board, pursuant to its participation and issuance of an Federal Interagency report. Both the report and the testimony are relevant to the Reed's claims. This testimony by and on behalf of the Debtor's regulator provides a definitive definition of what actions by the Debtor, (and similarly regulated entities), constitute negligent and/or wrongful behavior.

Specifically, the General Counsel of the FRB, acknowledging the patterns of misconduct and negligence in the processing of foreclosures, testified, in relevant part:

"The Federal Reserve's...foreclosure review process as well as...the enforcement action that the Board issued in April 2011...were taken in response to patterns of misconduct and negligence related to deficient practices in residential mortgage loan servicing and foreclosure processing...and represented significant and pervasive failure as well as unsafe and unsound practices."

[Statement of Scott G. Alvarez, General Counsel, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System: Submitted to the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs Subcommittee On Housing, Transportation, and Community Development - U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. - December 13, 2011].

More specifically defining the actual categories of negligent acts is the following testimony:

2. The servicer initiated foreclosure or conducted a foreclosure sale in advance of the time allowed for foreclosure under the terms of the note and mortgage or applicable state law.

14. The servicer initiated foreclosure or completed a foreclosure sale without providing adequate notice as required under applicable law, [Testimony of Julie L. Williams, First Senior Deputy Comptroller and Chief Counsel, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Before the Subcommittee on Housing Transportation, and Community Development of the Committee on Banking Housing, and Urban Affairs, United States Senate, December 13, 2011] (emphasis added).

It is without question that the GMACM did in fact commit the acts described in items 2 and 14 of the Testimony cited immediately above vis a vis the Reeds. This was determined as a matter of fact and law in the 2009 dismissal of the debtors' 2008 foreclosure action against the Reeds.

Additionally, the FRB found and stated publicly and before Congress the following:

"The reviews also revealed that all of the services relied heavily on outsourcing arrangements with outside counsel and other third-party vendors to carry out foreclosure processes without adequate oversight of those arrangements." [...]

"The agencies, (FRB being one), found that the servicers reviewed, (the debtors being among those), did not properly structure, carefully conduct, or prudently manage their third party vendor relationships with outside law firms (the law firms actually conducting the foreclosure litigation)".

[Interagency Review of Foreclosure Policies and Practices, Federal Reserve System, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency Office of Thrift Supervision, Washington, D.C., April 2011, (pp.8 and 9 respectively)] (emphasis added).

Therefore, the combination of the authoritative definition provided by GMACM's regulator as to what comprises a negligent and/or wrongful act by the debtor and the factual determination by the New Jersey Chancery Court in the 2009 dismissal of the debtors' foreclosure action, in which it was necessarily determined that the foreclosure action was both untimely and in violation of New Jersey foreclosure law, the debtors', as a matter of law, have indisputably committed both a negligent and / or a wrongful act against the Reeds.

V. Continued Negligent Prosecution of the Foreclosure

Upon review of the Dismissal Order and its associated Opinion it is clear that GMACM continued to prosecute the foreclosure negligently. The Reed's disclosed to them vis-à-vis their motion for dismissal that the law GMACM was relying on had been overturned, (GE Capital Mortgage Services, Inc. v. Weisman OCN-F-8083-99 (N.J. Super. Ch. Div. 2001) (Unpublished)). The current law based on EMC Mortgage Corporation v. Chaudhri 400 N.J. Super. 126, 946 A.2d 578 (App. Div. 2008) was published and obviously as discoverable as a click of a button. GMACM and its counsel are sophisticated participants in the mortgage and foreclosure industries. It is reckless that they did not stay up to date with current law and the judge in the foreclosure case admonished GMACM for relying on old law.

VI. Reed Modification

I have reviewed evidence that clearly indicates the Reeds entered into a modification of their loan. The record indicates that an agreement was not only struck by the meeting of the minds, but consideration was tendered and accepted by GMACM. However, it appears that GMACM failed to complete their obligations under the modification. They never adjusted the Reeds account to reflect the modification, which would have stopped the foreclosure. GMACM's failure is a breach of contract, an act of negligence, recklessness or bad faith.

VII. Conclusion re: Foreseeability

In general, it is well understood in the foreclosure profession / industry that it is quite foreseeable that the very act of filing a foreclosure is extremely harmful to the individual(s) being foreclosed. It is further understood that this is why there are multiple authorities that strictly govern the elements of the foreclosure process:

- 1) The contracts between parties to Notes and Mortgages themselves typically agree via the express provisions of their contracts that provide the strict requirements that must be fulfilled to institute foreclosure.

- 2) The numerous standards imposed as a matter of public policy vis-à-vis both controlling relevant legislation and the actions, rules and/or opinions of the industry regulators.
- 3) Common law of negligence.

VIII. Conclusion re: Liability

Negligence / Malice

During my review and analysis of the Reed documents I have applied my understanding of the professional and legal standards of care required pre, during and post filing of a foreclosure complaint in the State of New Jersey. While conducting this review and analysis I have identified numerous violations by GMACM of both legal and professional standards which govern the pre, during and post foreclosure filing time frames and their associated actions during those times, as well as RFC's violation of post foreclosure filing legal standards of care (through its permissive allowance of GMACM - either RFC's agent or co-holder of the note and/or assignee of the mortgage – to continue the wrongful maintenance of the lis pendens FOR YEARS AFTER its acquisition of the loan). Specifically, seven (7) wrongful acts:

- 1) The failure to send the Reeds notice required by law and contract.
- 2) GMAMC's actual physical filing of foreclosure complaint without verifying that actual notice had been given to the Reeds.
- 3) GMACM's filing of ANY complaint based on the false assertion that GMACM had standing as the "Holder" of the Reed note.
- 4) GMACM's filing of a CHANCERY division foreclosure action based on the false assertion that it had standing in Chancery to foreclose as the "Assignee" of the mortgage at or before the time of the filing of the foreclosure.
- 5) GMAMC's continued prosecution of the foreclosure under overturned law.
- 6) GMACM's failure to honor the loan modification.
- 7) GMACM's failure to remove the lis pendens despite the associated foreclosure's dismissal, the Reeds contacting GMACM through counsel and the Reeds even suing them in the New Jersey State Court's Law Division over the foreclosure and lis pendens.

Therefore, it is my professional opinion that both GMACM and RFC acted not only in a negligent manner toward the Reed's but they did so with actual malice, (i.e. they acted with the reckless disregard of the property rights of others).

Fraud

It is also my professional opinion that GMACM also committed fraud on the Chancery Court and the Reeds vis-a-vis its pleadings and filings related to the Reed 2008 foreclosure. Specifically this fraud was committed where GMACM explicitly represented itself to be the Holder of the Reed note and Assignee of the Reed Mortgage at the time of the filing of the foreclosure and that status was the basis for its standing at the time of its filing of the 2008 foreclosure complaint. The evidence demonstrates in a clear and convincing manner that GMAMC was neither the Holder of the Reed note nor the Assignee of the Mortgage.

Breach of Contract

Additionally, I find that it is also relevant to state that it is my professional opinion that if GMACM does indeed prove to be the owner / holder of the note and / or mortgage, then it would be in breach of contract with Frank Reed as a counterparty to the note and / or mortgage for not sending the required notice of intent to foreclose, as that notice was required under not only the New Jersey Fair Foreclosure Act, but the Mortgage contract as well.

Signed: _____ Dated: _____
Christy Zoltun Donati, Esquire

Blackwood, New Jersey